- The values in the drop-down lists<sup>1</sup> appear depending on the selected call for enrolment, application deadline and the type of entry that you have marked at the first step “Selection of call for enrolment and type of application”.
- Fill in all the fields. In the field “Field of study/module” select between the values in the offering list (if there is no offered value, leave the field blank).
- When you enter your first study programme, this will be displayed in the list. Click on the button "Add enrolment" and enter a new desired study programme you wish to study.

Where the candidate in the application can enter more than one desired study programme, the priority order in which the study programmes options are listed is important, because candidates will, under the conditions indicated in the Call for enrolment, will be placed in the first selected programme for which they meet all the conditions. Candidates should, therefore choose only those programmes for which they meet the enrolment conditions, otherwise their choice will not be taken into consideration.

<sup>1</sup> The drop-down list to display it by clicking on the arrow at the right edge of the field or so, that you start typing the desired word in the box.

Entry of three different study programmes does not mean that the candidate must enter all three. The candidate can also place only two or even only one different study programme.

The priority order in which you have entered the three different study programme wishes can be changed by clicking on the row with the data so it turns yellow. Then click on the button "Move up" or "Move down".

Review the order of study preferences, as it cannot be changed after submission. In case you enter multiple study preferences, you will be placed in the first program for which you meet all the requirements. Change the order of study preferences by selecting the field with the preference details and clicking the 'up' or 'down' arrow.
